Tips from Times wine columnist Randall Murray:

Judge on 0 to 4 scale, with 0 being awful and 4 perfect.

Color: Is the wine bright and clear? Is it an appropriate color? A white wine showing signs of brown-gold is probably over aged. A red wine with brown-brickiness also may be over the hill.

Aroma/Bouquet: Simply, does it smell good? Does it have a fruity, wine smell, or does it remind you of old gym socks?

Flavor: Don't make this complicated. Does the wine taste good? Let your taste buds be your judge ... and trust them.

Finish: That's the last flavor-texture sensation as you swallow the wine. Did it leave a favorable memory?

Overall Impression: What's your overall take on this wine? This is, by the way, not a compilation of the previous four categories.
